This house faces south onto Huntingtown Road. It is a two-story framed and weatherboarded structure set on a brick foundation. It has a three-bay facade and a side-passage-parlor plan. The gable roof is intersected by a front-facing gable. There is an interior brick stove flue. The double-hung sash have single large panes. There is a one-story hipped-roof screened-in porch, two one-story additions to the rear, and a one-story wing added to the east side. Behind the house are two small framed and vertical-boarded outbuildings -- probably granaries. Their gable ends face south. Ranging in a row toward the north are three framed and vertical-boarded barns, all oriented with gable ends to the east.
